

Have you ever asked yourself, who am I? Where do I fit in? Will others accept me for who I am?

Our free creative writing courses for young people aged 12-18 years are all about looking at these questions (& many more) to help us think about our identity and individuality.

During our inclusive and positive group workshops you will be able to express your own ideas and experiences looking at themes including diversity and what inspires and interests you personally.

Using writing devices and techniques plus a selection of relevant literature, you will be guided to write a short story which can be included into a published anthology and also made available online. There will also be a book launch at Storyhouse, Chester where you will have the opportunity, if you wish, to read your story to an audience of young people.

We are running 9 separate courses in local libraries and on Zoom. To book onto one of our courses simply choose the best one for you.
